A Tribunal for Pol Pot's Henchmen?

ON THE COVER: More than two decades after the Killing Fields, Cambodians worry that putting Khmer Rouge leaders on trial could resurrect the nightmare. Drawing the line between justice and revenge will be a risky job. FAR EAST EXPRESS: North Korea's Kim Jong Il agrees to reopen the old rail line through his country to South Korea. There's even talk of a tunnel to Japan. What it means for Eurasian trade. TAKE THE A TRAIN: With Bill Clinton's arrival in Harlem, New York's classic black neighborhood is going upscale—and struggling for its soul.
